STOCK-GRAZING IN SOUTH-EASTERN ALTA.

The period of reduction in rentals for certain lands in south eastern Alberta set aside for the purpose of stock grazing, granted in the spring of 1935 to continue until December 31, 1937, has been extended to December 31st, 1939, it was learned today in an interview with the Honourable N. E. Tanner, Minister of Lands and Mines.

While there has been some improvement of late in stock grazing conditions, Mr. Tanner stated, it is apparent from investigations made that lands in the drought area are still unable to satisfactorily maintain the amount of stock per acre required by the regulations.

The original rental rate, inclusive of taxation, was 4 cents per acre or $6.10 per quarter section. While this rate still continues in more favourable localities, the less favourable ones will continue to be subject to the reduced rates of $5.20, $4.20, or $3.20 per quarter section according to location.

Order in Council, O.C. 129137, authorizing this extension, is dated November the 8th, 1937.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. STRANGE,
Searle Grain Company, Limited

"Can Thatcher, the new rust-resistant wheat, be used as an early variety to replace Garnet?"

Many farmers in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan are asking that question; knowing, of course, that Thatcher is eligible to go into the grades No. 1 and No. 2 Northern, from which Garnet is excluded.

The results of thousands of tests, made by hundreds of "Crop Testing Plan" Elevator Agents, in co-operation with many farmers and with Governmental Institutions, reveal definitely that Thatcher not only is the highest yielding of all spring wheats, but that in addition it is about three days earlier than Marquis.

Because of this earliness, Thatcher certainly will escape damage from some early fall frosts which harm Marquis. Garnet, however, being ten days earlier than Marquis is still saved on days earlier than Thatcher.

I therefore strongly advise farmers, who have decided to replace Garnet with Thatcher, to treat their Thatcher seed against smut and root rot diseases with a mercurial dust—either Carco or Loytosar—and particularly to use fertilizer, either ammonium phosphate or triple superphosphate. These treatments will cause Thatcher to mature at least a week earlier than Marquis, making it about as early as Red Bobs or Reward and then not more than two or three days later than Garnet.

Japan In China

The atrocities committed, not only upon combatants but upon civilians — men and defenceless women and children alike by the Japanese in the recent conquest of Ethiopia, and in the present day by the Japanese in an undeclared war of ruthlessness and horror with the Chinese as their victims, have aroused wide indignation and protest in the civilized countries of the world.

So widespread is this indignation over the atrociousness and ferocity of the Japanese onslaught in China that the rank and file of the people in such countries as Great Britain, the United States and Canada are searching their minds for feasible and effective steps which might reasonably be taken to bring to a speedy end the terrors of the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Doubtless if some effective measure could be devised to put a stop to this horrible slaughter of innocents in the Orient, without serious danger of precipitating another widespread world war in which their own countries would almost inevitably be involved, the people of these democratic countries would not be slow in urging their governments to take the necessary steps.

But there is real danger of a general debacle if one or two countries should attempt to impose measures which are really effective in the Far East and it is this knowledge which makes the problem such a difficult one for Statesmen to handle. Undoubtedly the Japanese are fully aware of the complexities of the situation from the viewpoint of the democratic Occidentals and are taking full advantage of the situation.

In the meantime, people on this continent are doing what little they can to voice their righteous wrath and indignation by passing resolutions expressive of horror and indignation and by agreeing themselves to impose sanctions in a mild form by way of a boycott of Japanese goods, but the extent to which such measures can have a restraining influence on the conquering Japanese is open to doubt.

While Japan proclaimed pretext for invasion of Chinese territory in fear of the rise of Communism in a close neighboring country, the real reason is the necessity for finding sources of raw materials and creating markets for rapidly expanding industrialism in a country whose population is growing at the rate of a million a year. In a nutshell, commercial gain is the motive.

But as pointed out by R. T. Barrett in The Fortnightly of London, England, Japan could have achieved these objectives in China without embarking on a militaristic campaign of almost unparalleled ruthlessness if she had attempted to secure concessions through diplomatic channels. Barrett said that Japan had shown admiration in China by her achievements, Mr. Barrett says that Japan "has many friends in the Republic and could obtain the mineral and railway concessions that she wants if she would abstain from military coercion and work upon the assumption of political equality between the two nations. She could even get, in due time, favorable tariff rates for her goods and be accepted as China's tutor. Her natural advantages in competing for the trade of China would make her commercially irresistible, once she had secured Chinese friendship."

Instead of choosing the civilized method of gaining her goal, however, Japan decided to wrest what she wants from the Chinese by barbaric methods and in so doing is earning for herself, not only the ill will of 400,000,000 Chinese with all that may entail in the years to come, but the aversion of the people of many other countries of the world.

For the time being at least, Japan's resort to arms appears to have brought success. She has already acquired control over a large slice of Chinese territory and her materialistic gain to date is probably enough to pay out for her military adventures. She has also secured a number of "bought" territories in the Far East. The mental attitude which permits the Japanese to make unprovoked war on a neighboring country and in the fashion in which it is being carried out will probably result in the widespread ill will which she is incurring in other parts of the world being regarded as of no account.

But there is another aspect to the indignation which has been aroused by Japanese aggression and methods in China that is at least encouraging and this is aptly pointed out by Brooks Atkinson, dramatic critic of the New York Times, who stated in a recent article in that newspaper that "the moral standards of internationalism have been steadily improving. Unprovoked conquest for gain is to-day universally condemned. In spite of prevalent forces of evil we are not living in a period that is spiritually dead. When there are no evils of 'shame', the time will have come for lamentation."

The Spirit Of Optimism

Having Confidence In Your Town Or City Is Important

The spirit of optimism goes a long way with all of us, says the Geological, Mr. Mercury. To have confidence in the future of the city of your residence, of your Province, and of the nation is of vital importance. There is no room for the joy-killers in business or public life. A nation of pessimists cannot succeed in anything. This is the time to go forward to what shall be with assurance that the future is largely what we make it, and that spirit will be reflected in all industry when it dominates our daily life.

Plants Imitate Stones

In dry sections of Africa, where no rain falls for a year or more at a time, tiny plants grow and thrive on the rocky, sun-parched soil. By imitating the shape of the joy-killers in business or public life. A nation of pessimists cannot succeed in anything. This is the time to go forward to what shall be with assurance that the future is largely what we make it, and that spirit will be reflected in all industry when it dominates our daily life.

British House Of Commons Told Of Plans For Safeguarding Food

British Coal Mining

Parliament To Put Through A Bill To Nationalize The Industry

The British Government made public the details of a bill to be submitted to Parliament to nationalize the British coal mining industry.

Under the bill's terms the Government will buy out the present private coal owners for $66,400,000 ($323,250,000) and all coal in Great Britain will pass into state ownership.

The bill provides for unification of coal royalties on a national basis by the establishment of a new coal commission, replacing the present coal mines reorganization commission.

Any new coal discoveries automatically will come under the control of the commission, which will attempt to reduce the number of coal undertakings and, subject to parliamentary approval, will have the authority to advance compulsory amalgamation schemes.

Machinery is to be set up for the hearing of consumers' complaints.

The work of assessing the compensation to be paid to individual coalowners out of the $66,400,000 set aside for the purchase of royalties is expected to take until July 1, 1942, when ownership will become fully vested in the state.

Coalowners at present number 4,300, but many of their holdings have been consolidated since 1914. The coal problem has been outstanding for many years. Under the Balfour Government the coalowners set $150,000,000 as the price they demanded for their royalties, but they agreed to accept the findings of an arbitration board which was set up. The result was the 469,420 figure.

There were many protests against the board's findings. Many hereditary coalowners, such as those of the Duke of Hamilton and the Marquess of Bute, are founded on coal holdings, and the Church of England has been receiving $750,000 annually from its royalties.

When You Fall Asleep

Different Parts Of The Brain Go Into Slumber Separately

When you fall asleep, different parts of the brain go into slumber separately, like the successive winking out of lights in a closing office building.

The discovery, made with electrical tests, was reported in Science, the journal of American scientists. It was made by Dr. Halliwell Davis and F. A. Davis, of Harvard, and A. L. Loomis, Dr. E. N. Harvey and G. Hobart, of the Loomis Laboratory, Tuscon, N.Y.

Electroencephalograms — the currents of a few millionths of a volt that flow from the head — were used to test the oncoming of sleep. Peaks in the electroencephalogram were picked up during these currents.

The electrodes showed that some parts of the brain "shut down" for the night "about 15 minutes." The shut-down was apparent by a drop in the amount of electricity coming from that part of the brain. The flow became irregular and intermittent.

These electrical changes showed that sleep at the post where the sleeper felt the sensation of "floating." The electrical brain power fell, when sleep came, were all reduced to trickle of electricity.

Farm Problems

Urges Closer Co-operation Between The Agricultural Economies Of Canada And U.S.

Closer co-operation between the agricultural economies of Canada and the United States will bring a higher standard of living for farmers of both countries was proposed at Toronto by Norman Armour, United States minister to Canada, speaking at the opening dinner of the Royal Winter Fair.

"We devote a great deal of time, both you in Canada and we in the United States, to discussing the competitive features of our countries' activities in the agricultural world," he said.

"Competitive features, it is true, have developed, although I sometimes doubt their fundamental necessity, but I hope you will agree with me in feeling that despite the current emphasis of competition Canada and the United States have a common heritage in the soil as to suggest closer co-operation for a fuller and richer rural life.

"Much has been done already in both countries to lighten the burden of farm work and to end the physical and cultural isolation of the farm family... The current problem for the farmer is not so much one of isolation as it is of fitting the farmer into the commercial structure, not making the farm a place providing the higher standard of living we have come to regard as essential to a progressive society."

Mr. Armour said it is in this farm "business problem" which it is to be hoped the two nations can eventually solve to a common advantage.

"The problem is not necessarily one of large farms or of small farms, or of any special commodity or crop commodities. It is a common life itself and in fact is the life of millions of our people on both sides of the border."

He said the United States now has the greatest farm population in its history with farm totals increasing 10 per cent. in the past five years. Prior to the depression the march was from the land to the city but now the tide has turned and never before in the United States has there been such a trend to the land.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

TRY THESE TASTY BUT INEXPENSIVE DESSERTS

It is health is expensive. In many cases it can be avoided by eating proper food. This does not mean that expensive foods are required. Often the cheaper foods are higher in food value. Milk is one of the best fruits and vegetables and apples are among the most important fruits.

Fruits are much better than medicines in maintaining healthy bodies. We need a good supply of apples. Apples are the better place of the medicine-cabinet.

Apples stimulate the appetite because they require chewing. This is the best of the food. The digestive juice flowing freely is the secret of good digestion.

Milk and fruits should be used in the diet. The best is a banana. After the heavier main course of the dinner, a light dessert completes a balanced meal. These desserts can be prepared very quickly and are adapted for the diet of the sick.

Do you find it difficult to plan the diet of the sick? Try this recipe and we will be for another new dessert recipe. It will be for you without any charge and I think you will like it.

Making Success Of Farming

Requires Greater Diversity Of Knowledge Than City Work

The idea that "any fool can farm" successfully is in some minds, but it is a tragic myth. The man or woman who hopes to make a success of life in the country districts and on the land must have a greater diversity of knowledge than the person, who makes a success of his or her affairs in urban communities. Indeed, the person who knows little or nothing about land activities is destined to discover how resourceful even farm children are and the multitude of things they can do before they are well into their teens.

Certainly, if we are to have an expansion of successful farming in this province, the old idea that "any fool can farm" must be driven from the minds of some in official circles.—Halifax Herald.

Dousing A Pet

Author Of Gray's "Eggs" Had A Nervous Break Of Fire

A fire, happily not very serious, at Peterhouse, Cambridge, recalls a story of the poet Gray. Lord David Copperfield's aunt, the author of the "Eggs" had a nervous dream of fire, and when at Peterhouse, finding his room was on the top floor, he rigged up some iron bars (still to be seen) and kept a rope ladder in readiness for emergency. Discovering this, some of his fellow-colleagues could not let pass such an opportunity for ragging. One night a sudden cry of "Fire!" caused the poet to leap hastily and scramble down his ladder to land in a large tub of water placed in readiness by practical jokes. After which it was not surprising that Gray migrated to Pembroke.—Manchester Guardian.

These Vegetables Travel

Come Back To Be Sold Where They Were Grown

Writing in the London Spectator, Sir William Beach Thomas notes a curious circumstance connected with a "harmless hamlet" with which he is familiar. The hamlet lies on the edge of Bedfordshire.

When the people of the hamlet want vegetables they go to the green grocer. The green grocer gets his supplies from a semi-wholesaler who has bought his crops and vegetables from the local growers. The wholesaler, in turn, gets his vegetables from Covent Garden, and Covent Garden gets a good many of them from Bedfordshire, just beyond the doorstep of the "harmless hamlet."—Vancouver Province.

Birds Like Old Houses

Birds do not like new houses. There is something about the gleam of them which frightens the birds. Bird houses, set out in the fall, will be sufficiently "weathered" by spring to suit the feathered tenants. Wrens are especially fussy about avoiding new houses.

Arctic Patrol

Eskimos Furnish Much Needed Food To Royal Canadian Mounted

A fortunate meeting with a group of Eskimo who were well supplied with meat saved an Arctic patrol of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police from serious hardship last winter. It was revealed in the annual report of the patrol.

The patrol, a comparatively routine one, covered more than 1,000 miles, travelling south from Pond Inlet on the northwest coast of Baffin Island to Pitmeitlik on the northeast coast of Melville peninsula and back to Pond Inlet by a more westerly route touching Admiralty Bay and Eclipse sound.

On the first few days of the trip dourness and heavy going for the dog teams and then came storms which held up progress for two days. Dog sleds ran low and the tired animals had to be put on short rations.

One dog had to be shot and another carried on a sled. Other tracks were noticed but only two animals were seen and the party was unable to bag either. In an unsuccessful attempt was made to kill seal for the dogs.

However, after three weeks travelling, when things were looking really black, the patrol reached an Eskimo sealing camp on a small island in Foxe's Bay. Eight Eskimo families were in the camp and they were well supplied with meat so a quantity was purchased for the dogs.

The patrol consisted of Acting Lance Corporal Gray, Special Constable "Kommagash" and a guide named "Kommagash" with two dogs. They had the Eskimo settlements in the district to collect vital statistics and game returns.

Loving Your Neighbor As Yourself

Says Sir Evelyn Wrench "The Kellogg-Brandt Pact, designed to establish amity among nations, failed because world nations were further advanced than they actually were." Evelyn Wrench, founder of the English Speaking Union, said in an address at Toronto.

"After 25 years of travelling about the world," he told the Ontario Branch of the Union, "I have come to realize that the only way to save humanity is to put into effect the simple doctrine of the Founder of Christianity—love thy neighbor."

"During my travels on this great continent I have often paused to think what a wonderful thing it would be if we could find such brains as those that lived the great San Francisco bridges and showed Canada's railways through the Rocky Mountains to the point on the west coast the most important instrument to join the nations of the world."

WHAT HO!

"That picture was painted when she was a bride, just before she left England for America," said Ernest.

"It's over a golden day," said Ernest. "Well, sure sure grow 'em pretty in those days."

He handed the miniature back to Ernest, who wrapped it up and placed it in his suitcase.

"We're travelling along with you," said Mr. Stoum.

"I always do, wherever I go," Ernest said.

"Ernie," said Mr. Stoum, "you are without doubt the beatingest young fellow that ever wore shoes. If she was your best girl, now, I could understand it. But what percentage there is in totting around the picture of a party that's been dead for a hundred years ago, I'll be eternally rigid and frizzled if I can see."

"It's just an idea I have," said Ernest, and rejected a pair of cotton socks as unworthy of the picture.

"See here, Ernie," said Mr. Stoum, "while you're about it, why don't you do this trip in bang-up style? My offer for this place still stands. With five thousand dollars you could see Paris, and Rome, and—and Paris."

"But I only want to see England, and only one place in England," said Ernest. "I'm sorry, Mr. Stoum, but I won't sell out. What would I have to come home to?"

"Where something in that," conceded Mr. Stoum.

"I hate you, you bound," screamed a raucous voice.

Mr. Stoum started, collided with a porcine, and yelled.

"I'm so sorry," said Ernest. "It's only Elwin, the parrot."

"What'll happen to him and the rest of your stock while you're gone?" asked Mr. Stoum.

"I thought Luther might be willing to look after the place while I'm gone."

"For half the profits?" inquired Mr. Stoum.

"Yes."

"But will Luther do it?"

"He will," said Mr. Stoum, "or he won't be able to sit down till Christmas."

"I've prepared a memorandum," Ernest said, "giving him full instructions about how to take care of the animals and birds, and how to run the place."

"He'll follow it to the letter," Mr. Stoum promised, "or I'll lambaste the brutes off his back."

"I leave tonight on the midnight bus," said Ernest.

"Well, good-bye," said Mr. Stoum, and good luck. Have fun, and send us a postcard."

They pumped hands. Mr. Stoum disappeared, and Ernest finished his packing. It was not a monumental task. Three shirts, a new blue tie, two union suits, a coat, a pair of gray flannel trousers, the venerable tweed coat, a pair of stout walking shoes, the articles, the miniature of Lady Bingley—these were what would meet the eyes of the British custom inspectors.

Having packed, Ernest said good-bye to his friends in the cages and took in the pet birds.

He strode past the drug store, ignoring the gape which were flung at him by his habitues, ignored the traditional chorus of harking and meowing which issued from the fire-house as he went by, and smiled amiably at the pleasure-taker of Chuck and Joe, who came to the door of the pool room, came in hand, and said him in a friendly voice.

"Certainly. Come round to my shop when I get back," said Ernest.

and marched on to the bus depot, arriving at ten forty-five, although his bus did not leave till twelve.

Two nabobs were on the east-bound bus that night, headed for Terre Haute to join a circus.

"Pipe the rub in the blue suit," said one.

The second nabob surveyed Ernest.

"From where I sit," he said, "it looks like he's dipped into the laughing-soup."

"It's a bum, or else his bugs," said his companion.

They were right to this extent: Ernest Bingley was intoxicated, but not because he had imbibed of strong waters. An ecstatic smile had fastened on his face as if it had been stamped there, his eyes were very bright, and he was singing to himself.

"What ho for Merrie England, What ho, what ho, what HO!"

CHAPTER III.

They make good days in England. Often enough the weather of that well known little sea has the feel of cold boiled cabbage, the color of aul and as is dark as a halli-bow's foot.

It was over a golden day, from the top of the basket, when Ernest Bingley swung off a motor-cycle on his way for Terre Haute, a golden day which has been taken a nap in a quiet corner of Somershire since before Columbus ever saw a sea.

"Aye, so they are," replied Grig. "And this is one of them. But it can't be a shilling. They give it to the church."

"On the map it's about three miles," said Ernest.

"No," said Ernest. "It's about three miles."

"Can you rent me a horse?" Grig asked at Ernest.

"A horse," he exclaimed. "A horse," repeated Ernest, automatically.

"You'll hardly need a horse to go to the castle, but a nice kind, old horse, and on the pretty side, too."

"I want to ride, said Ernest. "The barber next door rents bikes."

"No," said Ernest. "I want to go there on a horse."

"What?"

"No, no, not a hunter," said Ernest. "I want a black 'n' white, old horse, but he must be white."

Grig rubbed his lowest chin thoughtfully.

"Gentlemen wants a horse," he murmured, partly to himself. "Should be gentle and white. Not a hunter. Right?"

"Takes a bit of doing, sir," said Grig. "Ow about a black 'n' white?"

"I don't want to go in a hack," said Ernest. "I must ride a horse."

The Battle Of Waterloo

Widow Of Soldier Who Served Under Wellington Is Drawing Pension

The battle of Waterloo was fought on the northeast frontier of France, 122 years ago, but the widow of a British soldier who served under Wellington is still drawing a pension.

And the woman to-day is only 75 years old.

The woman's husband joined as a soldier in 1815 at the age of 16. He served under Wellington in the campaign against Napoleon, and continued in the service at the close of the war.

He lived to a ripe age and when on the verge of 80 led to the altar, a bride of 17.

Time passed and she became a widow. Hard times brought destitution and ultimately her case was brought to the attention of the widows, orphans and old age commissionary authorities.

The woman was advised that under a section of the act, a woman over 53 could receive a widow's pension under certain conditions.

One of them provided that her husband's death had occurred before Jan. 4, 1926. Another stipulation was that at some time within three years of his death he had been in an occupation which would have come under the Pensions Act of 1925, had it been in force in his day.

She qualified under these provisions. And while officials were incredulous, she admitted it was "just possible" to fulfill all the requirements.

The section under which the claim was made has since been amended.

Workers Are Lucky

They Go Forward Under The Spur Of Daily Needs

Man dreams of liberty, freedom from toil, schemes for more leisure. Most of us are not fit for it. Lucky is the man who is still driven on by necessity. He should be grateful for the whip and spur of his daily needs. He goes forward under it, gets some-where. Why the rich man's son, so better equipped for doing nothing than the rest of us, yet so much more strongly tempted.—London Express.

Prevod Good News

When the phone rang, Mrs. Arthur Wright, Toronto, thought it might be a call from her husband. He was the man who was going to foreclose the mortgage on the Wright home. Maybe it was a bill collector. The husband had been out of work six months. A voice told her she had won a $1,000 prize for a 24-word endorsement of a cooking ingredient in a continent-wide contest.

Lighting was thought to be signaling until photography proved that the "vorners" were rounded.

JAPS TAKE PRECAUTIONS

Japanese police are here seen searching Chinese on the Garden Bridge in the Shanghai area. Later they attempted to allow Chinese to cross the bridge, claiming that among those refusing to cross was a sniper.

Guide For Discussion Groups

Questions For National Conference Of Canadian University Students

Intended as a guide for the scores of discussion groups which have been set up in the universities of Canada, a pamphlet has been issued by the secretary of the National Conference of University Students.

The pamphlet contains suggestions, questions and bibliography regarding the general subjects to be discussed at the national conference. These are: The Student and Canada's Foreign Policy, The Student and the Church, and The Student and the University.

Some of the questions in the pamphlet are to be discussed in the conference groups are: What is the function of the modern university? Is a philosophy of life of value to those going out into the modern world? What do you think of the imposition by Canada of the embargo on all war supplies or on all supplies to any aggressor nation, as defined by the present League of Nations? How far from the student press is the field of Christian action today? Should the church be concerned with the psychological treatment of the individual? What is the relationship between the trade union movement and democracy?

CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS

With the Christmas season a short distance away, the buying public have made quite a stir in local sales.

It is hoped that the citizens will keep up the good work by supporting the local merchants as much as possible.

Each year the local merchants have to buy their holiday goods well in advance, and they look to the local district buyers to make their purchases, when possible, in the local field. The prosperity of your district depends on your support—let it be as generous as possible this year.

WHY NOT A LIBRARY?

Champion could well do with a lending library.

Many excellent volumes of good reading is stored away or forgotten, why not dig these up donate them to the cause, and the first thing you know we will have the nucleus of what might be some day a real asset to the community.

Besides laying the foundation for this necessary institution, it opens up the possibility of a position for some one as librarian.

16 YEAR PERIOD SHOWS SMALL GAINS

Although net earnings of the petroleum industry in 1936 showed a gain over 1935, the return on invested capital stood at only 1.54 percent, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Earnings of the industry as a whole have not exceeded five percent in any year since 1921, and for three out of the past six years the industry accumulated deficits.

For the 16 years from 1921 to 1936 average annual earnings were only 1.43 percent of the invested capital. Although the industry has steadily expanded, increased competition, low prices, rapid obsolescence of equipment, and mounting taxes have tended to keep earnings at a low level.

For this 16-year period the average capital investment was $10,770,828,000; average earnings, $154,530,560; average return 1.43 percent. Art. B-22.

YOUR LITTLE SAVINGS... FINANCE MORTGAGE LOANS

TENS of thousands of Canadian farms and homes benefit from first mortgage loans made possible by the accumulated savings of Life Insurance policyholders.

For every borrower, there are six thrifty people who supply the necessary funds.

This fact affords a striking illustration of the "double duty" performed by Life Insurance dollars. Not only do they ensure financial security for the men, women and children of Canada, but they also help to build and finance their farms and homes.

Life Insurance companies exercise the greatest care in the selection of properties upon which mortgage loans are made. To safeguard the savings of policyholders, security of principal and interest is and must always be the first consideration.
